

On 20th October 2010, Mars entered its swagrahi sign of Vrishchik, Scorpio. Although this Jyotish sign makes mars very powerful and aggressive there are a lot of negative traits which are evoked by this transit of Mars in Scorpio. We will discuss this along with the earlier change of sign from Virgo to Libra on 17th October 2010 by both Sun and Mercury.

On 17th October 2010, Surya and Budh have shifted to Libra. Mercury is combust as it is very near to Sun in degrees and it will not be able to be potent again till 27th October 2010. Libra is the sign of debilitation for Surya which loses much of its good luck, confidence and ego when it transits through this sign ruled by Venus, its enemy. But, such a Surya promotes arts and entertainment and, as it is undergoing a Neech Banga due to its combination with Swagrahi Venus in Libra, it will promote them with extra vigour this time.

So, we have Surya, Budh and Shukra bestowing their combined and confusing but beneficial blessings on the sign of Libra. Surya will stay in Tula till 16th November 2010. Venus has already become retrograde in Libra and will not leave this sign for next two months. Mercury will enter Scorpio on 5th November 2010. From there on Venus will accompany Surya in Libra till 16th November 2010.

Scorpio is a sign which motivates selfish thoughts, partisan attitude, inflation of ego, false confidence and cruelty. Despite being a Swagrah (own sign) for Mangal, Vrishchik brings forth more of the negative and harmful side of Mars than the good and the beneficial side. Mars had entered Scorpio on 20th October 2010 and will leave this fixed watery sign on 30th November 2010. It will be joined by Mercury on 5th November and then by Surya on 16th November 2010. Meanwhile, Jupiter retrogrades to Aquarius, in fourth house from Mars, on 1st November 2010 and stays there till 30th November 2010.

These transits will bring some welcome changes for the world economy. The recent G20 meeting will have some positive breakthroughs but the powerful nations will be more interested in promoting their own interests at the cost of the developing nations. Mars in Scorpio does not allow the justice to happen in its true sense. Military spending too will increase in a much disguised form.

Stock markets will gain well from the second week of November 2010 onwards for the rest of the month. But, till then, the fluctuations will be quite frequent and one must be cautious when trading in stocks on daily basis. The tug of war between Sun and Venus will keep the stock markets on a roller coaster ride.

Investigations in recent Commonwealth Games scam will be conclusive but the filing of chargesheets may be delayed till 16th November 2010 when Surya and Mangal come together in Scorpio. The actual convictions and punishments may begin only in the last two weeks of December 2010. If the whole investigation and convictions are not finished before May 2010 then they will go on forever and this scam will also join the list of the increasing number of unsolved scams in India.
